Commentary

IXP opens at 6800; 4 points below previous close. For most of the day the index was moving on a horizontal trend. As expected, the weak and low trades pressed the price index further down to break the support level at 6766 and towards 6722. The index bounced and closed at 6750; down by 53 points from previous close. The selling wave can be attributed to the unsatisfied dividends announced by few companies. Currently we're above the support level at 6722 and 6680. In case of breaking all support levels, the index will fall to 6534 and then 6345-6325.
